Intro

This article is a Part II, as well as a "work in progress", of the more extensive '150 Years of Voting in a Managed Democracy: Same Elite Network Behind All Republican and Democrat Candidates; Power from Morgan to Rockefeller to Kissinger'. That article was focused on U.S. administrations and political candidates. This article in focused on Europe, and likely in the future also more on the non-U.S., non-U.K. English-speaking world. Both articles look at pre-existing direct and closely indirect Rockefeller and other elite ties (largely through Bilderberg, the Trilateral Commission, and increasingly the massive Soros network) to administration members, as well as candidates for the prime ministership or presidency that did not make it.

The main idea is to look for elite ties when future heads of state still were "nobodies" or relative "nobodies", i.e. not already cabinet members. For example, Gunnar Thoroddsen being elected prime minister in 1980 while having visited Bilderberg in 1966 is not super-interesting, because this person already was a finance minister in 1959-1965. It's not insignificant - far from it - but maybe it also is not good enough to be listed. For the United States it has been quite easy to identify very or relatively early elite ties. For Europe, this appears to be more of challenge for the time being. There are just more countries, more languages, more universities, more (relevant) businesses, with only the tiniest fraction of old "conspiracy literature".

In the past this author identified a considerable amount of future heads of state from Bilderberg and (possibly) Trilateral Commission lists, both groups founded and (largely) ran by David Rockefeller. These notes have been lost for the time being. One day we might try again. In the mean time, added are all relevant names of the first 1993 Davos "Global Leaders for Tomorrow" class, which contained a staggering list of future heads of state.

For the sake of keeping things manageable, at this point we are not looking yet at appointed administration members, such as secretaries of state, defense, finance, etc., as was done in the U.S. article. For now, the focus is purely elected heads of state.

Power Corporation's control of Canada

In terms of the globalist movement, Canada's has had two main players for well over half a century: the Bronfmans and the Desmarais family behind Power Corporation. Looking at the presence of Charles Bronfman at the wedding of Andre Desmarais in 1981 [1], and the later presence of Charles Bronfman on the international advisory board of Power Corporation, it seems clear that these two families have been close allies.

Top Rockefeller-allied globalists have been involved with Power Corporation since even before the Demarais family gained control in 1968. Future 1001 Club member Maurice Strong - from age 18 a David Rockefeller ally in new age United Nations-linked globalism [2] - was executive vice-president 1961-1963, and president 1963-1966. By 1971-1976, he was a trustee of the Rockefeller Foundation, followed by countless more Rockefeller ties. Top future globalist James Wolfensohn was hired by Strong in the 1960s. Later international advisory board members included Paul Volcker, Charles Bronfman, Albert Frere of the allied Belgian Suez Group, and Gustavo Cisneros.

Paul Desmarais, Sr. was the controlling shareholder of Power Corporation since 1968, and chair and CEO from 1968 to 1996. Paul Desmarais, Jr. has been chair and CEO since 1996, with another son being Andre Desmarais. Paul Desmarais, Sr. visited Bilderberg in 1982, later followed up by son Paul, Jr.; and briefly was a member of the Trilateral Commission anno 1995, where he was followed up by his son Andre. However, the entire Desmarais family - including Paul Jr. and Andre Desmarais - has been involved in countless globalist think tanks and have formed the premier globalist connection in Canada for decades, next to the Bronfmans.

It almost is not a secret anymore either that Power Corporation has been tied to the production of so many Canadian prime ministers.

Heads of state

Name	Government position
Pierre Trudeau	Prime minister of Canada 1968-1979, 1980-1984. Pierre Trudeau's initial campaign for the prime ministership in 1968 was coordinated from the offices of Power Corporation [3], making him an agent of Paul Desmarais and Maurice Strong, whose globalist policies he certainly heavily implemented. Situated on the international advisory council of Power Corporation in the 1990s. [4] Ted Johnson, Trudeau's executive assistant from 1980 to 1984, joined Power Corporation as secretary in 1985, becoming senior vice-president and general counsel in 1987. [5] Michael Pitfield, who served as clerk of the Privy Council of Canada and Secretary to Trudeau's cabinet in 1975-1979 and again in 1980-1982, ended up serving as vice chair of Power Corporation from the mid 1980s to 2002. Pitfield came from a banking family. His nephew, Ward Elcock, served as the director of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service from 1994 to 2004.

Brian Mulroney	Prime minister of Canada 1984-1993. Present at the May 23, 1981 wedding of Andre Desmarais - of the family controlling Power Corporation - and France Chrétien, the daughter of future prime minister Jean Chrétien. Charles Bronfman also was present, as was U.S. Amassador Thomas Enders. [6]
Jean Chrétien	Minister of justice (1980–1982) and energy (1982–1984) under Pierre Trudeau. Prime minister of Canada 1993-2003. On May 23, 1981, over a decade before his prime ministership, Chrétien's daughter, France Chrétien, married Andre Desmarais [7], a son of Paul Desmarais, Sr., the family behind Power Corporation. They ended up having four children. In the late 1980s, still before being elected prime minister, Chrétien sat on the board of Consolidated-Bathurst, one of two major holding companies of Power Corporation until its sale in January 1989. [8]
Paul Martin	Prime minister of Canada 2003-2006. Hired by Power Corporation president Maurice Strong - from age 18 a David Rockefeller ally in new age United Nations-linked globalism [9] - as a special / executive assistant in the 1960s. [10] Appointed to the board of Power Corporation's Canada Steamship Lines in 1970, followed by the position of president and CEO in 1973. [11] In 2005 both Maurice Strong and Paul Martin were implicated in the Oil-For-Food programme, with Saddam Hussein trying to curry favor with the United Nations friends of Maurice Strong [12], by then a right-hand of United Nations secretary general Kofi Annan. [13]
Justin Trudeau	Prime minister of Canada 2015-2025. Son of Pierre Trudeau, Canada's 1968-1979 and 1980-1984 prime minister who was deeply plugged into Power Corporation from even before his first prime ministership. Pierre visited the Club of Rome in 1971, was a member of the insider IGWEL group of Davos anno 1984, and a member of the international advisory board of Power Corporation in the 1990s.

Mark Carney	Unelected prime minister of Canada since March 14, 2025, five days after becoming head of Canada's Liberal Party. Put in place by 2015-2025 Canadian prime minister Justin Trudeau. Governor of the Bank of Canada 2008-2013. Davos visitor since at least 2008, and trustee since at least 2015. Davos was founded and has been headed ever since by Henry Kissinger- and Maurice Strong-protege Klaus Schwab. [14] Visitor Bilderberg 2011-2012, in 2011 with David Rockefeller and both years with Henry Kissinger. Governor of the Bank of England 2013-2020. Deeply tied to the U.S. globalist establishment in other ways since well before his appointment as prime minister by a resigning Justin Trudeau, also of Davos.

WESTERN EUROPE

U.K. administrations

UK has not given US permission to use RAF bases for Iran strikes

Name	Government position
Tony Blair	Prime minister U.K. 1997-2007. Together with many top globalists and future heads of state, including Gordon Brown, a member of the first 1993 batch of "Global Leaders for Tomorrow" (the later "Young Global Leaders") of Davos, a group founded and headed by Henry Kissinger- and Maurice Strong-protege Klaus Schwab. [15] That same year, in 1993, Blair received his one and only Bilderberg invitation, being listed as "Member of Parliament (Shadow Home Secretary, Labour)." David Rockefeller was present that year. Kissinger, as was very rare, was not.
Gordon Brown	Prime minister U.K. 2007-2010. Brown received his first and only Bilderberg invitation in 1991. David Rockefeller and Henry Kissinger both were present that year. Similar to

	Tony Blair, a member of the first 1993 batch of "Global Leaders for Tomorrow" (the later "Young Global Leaders") of Davos, a group founded and headed by Henry Kissinger- and Maurice Strong-protege Klaus Schwab. [16]
Sir Keir Starmer	Prime minister U.K. July 2024-. Member of David Rockefeller and Henry Kissinger's Trilateral Commission from some time between January 2017 and April 2018, so from around the time that David Rockefeller died. Originally he was listed as, "Member of the British Parliament; Shadow Secretary of State for Exiting the European Union, London." In early 2026 Starmer protected a nuclear-obsessed Ayatollah Iran by blocking the U.S. from using the U.K.'s British bases, as well as Diego Garcia, during the entire, initial, crucial stage of the conflict. [17] Immediately after it was found out that Starmer had been lying about not knowing about Lord Mandelson's "close personal ties" to convicted pedophile Jeffrey Epstein. [18]

Irish administrations

Name	Government position
Mary Robinson	Senator 1969-1989. Prime minister Ireland 1990-1997. Founding member of David Rockefeller's Trilateral Commission in 1973. Involved in many globalist think tanks in later decades.

Dutch administrations

A 2023 Dutch election "debate" that starts to feel a lot like all participants have escaped from a 1960s CIA MKULTRA subproject. "Conservative CIA" prime ministers and candidates as Thierry Baudet and Geert Wilders have not yet been addressed here. GreenLeft candidate Jesse Klaver, also in an alliance with the Labour Party (PvdA), for years had been a trustee at that point of the Bilderberg-dominated think tank Friends of Europe, under top globalist Etienne Davignon [19], the former honorary chair of Bilderberg who also appeared in the Dutroux X-Dossiers, together with his close friends, the Lippens brothers. Needless to say, Klaver is a major propagandist against the use of the term "omvolking" (repopulation, i.e., white replacement). [20]

Name	Government position
Ruud Lubbers	Economics minister 1973-1977. Prime minister Nov. 1982 to Aug. 1994. More work is needed on any earlier ties, but by May 1981 a founding patron of the pro-Europe think tank American European Community Association (AECA), together with key veteran Bilderbergers Henry Kissinger, George Ball, George McGhee and the Agnelli family. [21] The AECA was funded by tobacco group Philip Morris, which maintained a relationship with Lubbers, both directly and through the AECA. [22]
Mark Rutte	Prime minister of the Netherlands 2010-2024. Graduate of Leiden University, where the elite Minerva Fraternity is situated, of which the Orange royal family have been generational members, and where multinationals as Shell and Unilever also do a lot of their recruiting. While Rutte was not a member of Minerva - considered "one of the foundations of our ruling elite" - various of his later cabinet members were. [23] Chair of the youth organization of the neoliberal-inclined VVD party 1988-1991. From 1992 to 2002 he held mid level management positions at the Dutch-British multinational Unilever, and its various subsidiaries. [24] Unilever is a founding Bilderberg firm through Paul Rijkens and always has been a key firm in financing the globalist movement. It also is part of Davos, for example. From 1993 to 1997 Rutte also sat on the national board of director of the VVD party. In that manner he worked under 1990-1998 VVD head Frits Bolkestein, a former Shell Oil manager and four-time Bilderberg visitor in 1996, 2002, 2003 and 2004, and listed in ISGP's "conservative CIA" article for his mentorship of other "conservative CIA" assets Joshua Livestro and Geert Wilders. When Rutte briefly entered congress in 2002, it actually was Geert Wilders who largely showed him the ropes. In 2006 Rutte became head of the VVD Party.

Only after becoming prime minister in 2010, did Rutte become directly involved in globalist think tanks. Considering this author hasn't found a single news outlet reporting on it, in November 2011 Rutte was part of a fully secret regional meeting of the Trilateral Commission at Palace Noordeinde, hosted by Queen Beatrix and her son, future King Willem Alexander. From there, Rutte went on to become a Bilderberg regular, visiting in 2012-2013, 2015-2016, and all meetings between 2018 and 2023.

Davos Rutte certainly visited in 2013 and from 2019 to 2023. He actually reported at least some of these visits on his official Twitter, giving us a good indication as to the difference in sensitivity between these organizations. Shell chairman and Bilderberg veteran Jeroen van den Veer, Unilever head Paul Polman, a known confidante of Rutte [25], who, as mentioned, used to be a manager at Unilever himself; Queen Maxima and Princess Mabel of Orange, the latter the long-time Soros ally, all visited Davos with Rutte in the 2013-2023 period. Looking at the 2023 participants list, Rutte took along almost his entire cabinet to Davos: the ministers of defense, finance, foreign trade and development, social affairs and employment, infrastructure and water, and two recently-retired secretaries of state. Noteworthy too is that all of these ministers were women, apart from one former secretary of state. While Shell and Unilever had their usual presence, flanking these ministers to Davos were not Van den Veer or Paul Polman for once, but certainly the heads of the three banks that together control over 80% of Dutch banking: ING, Rabobank and ABN AMRO; as well as McKinsey & Co., Heineken, and Randstad, the world's largest temporary ("temp") employment agency. Bilderberg co-chair Victor Halberstadt tagged along as well. Needless to say, Rutte buried the Netherlands in Third World immigrants and skyrocketed house prices to unpayable levels. He did have a strong habit though to compromise with "the left", or "liberal CIA"-type parties on issues of socialism and environmentalism, making him a bit of full-spectrum globalist.

Rob Jetten	Head D66 party 2018-. Minister of climate and energy under prime minister Mark Rutte 2022-. Head of the D66 party 2023-. Vice premier 2024-. Won the prime ministrial election in 2025 with a very deceptive "pro-Netherlands" campaign, but tied in seats with neocon Geert Wilders. Gay protege of D66 party leader Alexander Pechtold, an old Minerva member and 2012 Bilderberg visitor. Himself a David Rockefeller fellow of the Trilateral Commission from 2020 to 2023 [26], something that has been massively hidden in the media, certainly when ISGP began listing him as such in mid 2024. Even Parliament.com didn't list this affiliation, at least not on the main page, until immediately before or after the October 2025 election that Jetten won. [27] Jetten did briefly explain himself on the matter on August 19, 2021, massively underplaying his involvement: > "No, no, no, it is not specifically one person [who invited me]. But I myself like to meet other young people from Europe who try to make the world a little bit better and to inspire each other in that matter."[28] Massive pusher of Third World immigration, even more unrestrained than the neoliberal-inclined VVD prime minister Mark Rutte. Within months of taking office riots started breaking out over the huge numbers of asylum centers being opened everywhere, with Jetten of course heavily criticizing opposition. Somehow, the masses actually thought he was going to introduce a "pro-Netherlands" agenda. But immediately upon taking office, he conspired with the VVD and Christian Democrats to up the retirement age to a whopping 70, while introducing even more controversial legislation to tax all wealth increases from 1,800 euros and up with 36% (below 55,000 has always been left untouched), even unrealized gains in stocks and crypto. Additional taxes to finance NATO funding were introduced as a "freedom contribution". Fines, already unbelievably high in the Netherlands, were upped even more. Speed camera were doubled. [29] Criticism was massive, but as always, no one riots or seriously protests.

Belgian administrations

Name	Government position
Mark Eyskens	Prime minister of Belgium April-Dec. 1981. Finance (1980-1981), economics (1981-1985), foreign (1989-1992) minister. Founding member of David Rockefeller's Trilateral Commission in 1973, until entering the Belgian government in 1976.

German administrations

Name	Government position
Kurt Kiesinger	Leader CDU 1967-1971, chancellor of West-Germany 1966-1969. Bilderberg visitor in 1955, 1956, 1957, 1959 and 1960, alongside David Rockefeller.
Helmut Schmidt	Minister of defense Oct. 1969-1972, minister of economics and finance 1972-1974, chancellor of West Germany May 16, 1974-1982. Schmidt visited the U.S. for the first time in 1950, representing the bombed-out port of Hamburg at a Chicago trade fair. He met Henry Kissinger for the first time in 1957 or 1958, and was groomed by American elites from there on. As Schmidt himself explained in a 2007 article for the magazine of the Kissinger-co-founded American Academy in Berlin: "Henry Kissinger and I met for the first time ... at [or around] Harvard ... in 1957 or 1958. ... Thanks to Henry Kissinger, Robert Bowie, and Paul Doty, I was introduced to outstanding American authorities and specialists like Bernard Brodie, Klaus Knorr, General Maxwell Taylor, Zbigniew Brzezinski, George Kennan, Paul Nitze and many others. ... When in the end of the 1960s I became Germany's defense secretary I was able to meet my colleagues in NATO with the same level of knowledge and judgment – thanks to the education I had received earlier from those Americans (and as well from a few British and French specialists)."[30] Visited Bilderberg for the first time in 1966, with David Rockefeller, Rockefeller mentor John McCloy, and Zbigniew Brzezinski also present. This is in between Schmidt being a senator in Hamburg and the head of the Social Democratic Party in the Bundestag from March 1967. Again visited Bilderberg in 1967 and 1969, also together with David Rockefeller. Months after the 1969 Bilderberg meeting, Schmidt became defense minister (1969-1972), followed the post of minister of finance (1972-1974). Anno 1972 Henry Kissinger, the son of Nelson Rockefeller, Rodman; various early neocons, and Helmut Schmidt were members of the (neo)conservative Hudson Institute, which, through its CFR founder, Herman Kahn, was represented at the first Davos conference in 1971. In May 1973 Schmidt again visited Bilderberg, with Baron Edmond de Rothschild and Zbigniew Brzezinski present. Henry Kissinger was mostly serving as national security advisor and secretary of state at this time. Schmidt became chancellor on May 16, 1974, after his predecessor, Willy Brandt was forced to resign on May 7 after it was discovered that one of his key aides was an East German Stasi spy. Visited the Bohemian Grove in 1982. Founding patron of the 1996-founded neocon New Atlantic Initiative alongside Henry Kissinger, George Shultz and Margaret Thatcher.

Angela Merkel	Leader CDU 2000-2018, chancellor of Germany 2005-2021.. Together with many top globalists and future heads of state, a member of the first 1993 batch of "Global Leaders for Tomorrow" (the later

	"Young Global Leaders") of Davos, a group founded and headed by Henry Kissinger- and Maurice Strong-protege Klaus Schwab. [31]
Friedrich Merz	Leader CDU 2022-2025, chancellor of Germany May 2025-, after a Feb. 2025 election.. Lawyer by training. In a power struggle for control of Germany's leading Christian Democrat party (CDU) with Angela Merkel from 2000, until leaving for business in 2024. Chairman of the historically Rockefeller, Warburg, Kissinger and globalist big businees-tied U.S.-German NGO Atlantik-Brucke 2009-2019. [32] Member of the (international) advisory boards of globalist-financing corporations Robert Bosch GmbH (2011-) and Ernst & Young Germany, as well as chairman of the advisory / supervisory boards of HSBC Trinkaus (2010-2019) and BlackRock Germany (2016-2020). First-time visitor of Bilderberg in May 2024, almost a year before winning the chancellor elections.

French administrations

Name	Government position
Nicolas Sarkozy	President of France 2007-2012. Together with many top globalists and future heads of state, a member of the first 1993 batch of "Global Leaders for Tomorrow" (the later "Young Global Leaders") of Davos, a group founded and headed by Henry Kissinger- and Maurice Strong-protege Klaus Schwab. [33]
Emmanuel Macron	President of France 2017-, still anno 2026. MA in public affairs from Sciences Po, historically France's most elite university. Joined Rothschild & Cie Banque in 2008, and a partner in 2010-2012, before entering the French government in 2012. He was hired to Rothschild on the advice of the Jewish businessman Alain Minc [34], the supervisory chair of Le Monde (1994-2008), a 1989 Davos visitor and in 2007 a founding member of European Council on Foreign Relations (ECFR), whose seed funding came from George Soros. A 1999 birthday party of Alain Minc is known to have included Bilderberg, Trilateral Commission and otherwise elite ISGP Superclass Index names as Dominique Strauss-Kahn, Pascal Lamy, Gerard Mestrallet, David de Rothschild, Jean-Claude Trichet, and Vincent Bolloré [35], an old friend of future president Nicolas Sarkozy. In 2008 Minc was named as one of the participants in meetings of the elite Siecle Club in Paris. In other words, no later than 2008 was Macron picked up by France's "kingmakers". After this, in 2014, Macron was a visitor of David Rockefeller and Henry Kissinger's Bilderberg group, being listed as "deputy secretary general of the presidency" of French president Francois Hollande. A member of the 2016 batch of "Young Global Leaders" (the old "Global Leaders for Tomorrow") of Davos, a group founded and headed by Henry Kissinger- and Maurice Strong-protege Klaus Schwab. Macron already was a popular presidential candidate at this point though. The Young Global Leaders group also had lost its prestige by then. In 2018 he founded the elite but very "liberal CIA" Paris Peace Conference with Alexander Soros.

Italian administrations

Name	Government position
Giulio Andreotti	Italy's minister of the interior 1954, finance 1955-1958, treasury 1958-1959, industry and commerce 1966-168, defense 1959-1966 and 1974, interior again 1978, foreign affairs 1983-1989, prime minister 1972-1973, 1976-1979, 1989-1992.. Protege since at least 1942 of Monsignor Montini, known as Pope Paul VI from 1963 to 1978. A devout Opus Dei member from early on [36] and an eventual Knight of Malta. [37] Met with David Rockefeller from 1967 until some time in the 1970s within the secretive intelligence-Opus Dei/Knights of Malta liaison group Le Cercle Pinay. [38] Rockefeller was joined by Henry Kissinger in Le Cercle Pinay [39], all of which is relevant for the CIA's anti-communist "Strategy of Tension" in Italy. [40] Andreotti apparently was among those Cercle members considered "too reactionary" for David Rockefeller for an invitation to Bilderberg or the Trilateral Commission.[41]

Romano Prodi	Prime minister of Italy 1996-1998, 2006-2008. President European Commission 1999-2004. Until November 1978 a teacher at the University of Bolognia, where he apparently gave the police an accurate tip on the Red Brigades and the kidnapped prime minister Aldo Moro based on a seance. From November 1978 to March 1979, he was Italy's minister of industry, commerce and craftsmanship under prime minister Giulio Andreotti, the long-time Rockefeller-Kissinger associate within the "Strategy of Tension"-tied Cercle Pinay group by that time. In contrast to Andreotti, Prodi is considered the founder of Italy's centre-left. Prodi's first visit to David Rockefeller and Henry Kissinger's Bilderberg group occurred in 1980. He joined the steering committee in 1981, and subsequently visited in 1982, 1987, 1990 and 2009. From 1990 to May 1993, Prodi was an international advisory director at Goldman Sachs [42], the most dominant bank within Bilderberg looking at advisors and executives moving into this group.
Mario Monti	Italy's minister of economy and finance 2011-2012. Prime minister of Italy 2011-2013. Scholarship to Yale in the late 1960s. Economics professor at the University of Turin 1970-1985. President of the European Money and Finance Forum (SUERF) 1982-1985. Regular of David Rockefeller and Henry Kissinger's Bilderberg group between 1983 and 2015, much of it as steering committee member. Member of the David Rockefeller-founded Trilateral Commission since at least 1985, and its E.U. chair until 2012.

Spanish administrations

Name	Government position
Jose Maria Aznar	Neoconservative-inclined prime minister of Spain 1996-2004.

	Together with many top globalists and future heads of state, a member of the first 1993 batch of "Global Leaders for Tomorrow" (the later "Young Global Leaders") of Davos, a group founded and headed by Henry Kissinger- and Maurice Strong-protege Klaus Schwab. [43]
Jose Luis Zapatero	Prime minister of Spain 2004-2011.. 2001 class of Davos' Global Leaders for Tomorrow. Ironically the political nemesis of 1993 Global Leaders for Tomorrow Davos member Jose Maria Aznar, Spain's pro-Iraq War prime minister of 1996-2004. Zapatero visited Bilderberg in 2010 and developed additional globalist ties.

Portuguese administrations

Name	Government position
Jose Manuel Barroso	Prime minister of Portugal 2004-2014. Together with many top globalists and future heads of state, a member of the first 1993 batch of "Global Leaders for Tomorrow" (the later "Young Global Leaders") of Davos, a group founded and headed by Henry Kissinger- and Maurice Strong-protege Klaus Schwab. [44]

Danish administrations

Name	Government position
Helle Thorning-Schmidt	Leader of the Social Democrats 2005-2015. Prime minister of Denmark 2011-2015. Founding council member of George Soros' European Council on Foreign Relations (ECFR) in 2007 [45], and has continued to be a member until at least 2026. [46]

Swedish administrations

Name	Government position
Olof Palme	Leader of the Social Democratic Party 1969-1986. Prime minister of Sweden 1969, 1976, 1982-1986. Assassinated in 1986. Palme's first visit to Bilderberg already was in 1965, with David Rockefeller, Marcus Wallenberg, Sir Siegmund Warburg, Prince Bernhard, Prince Philip, and Gianni Agnelli among the other participants. A second visit took place in 1973. This is one of the few meetings without David Rockefeller, but Zbigniew Brzezinski and Baron Edmond de Rothschild were among the participants that year. Marcus Wallenberg was present again as well. Palme visited Bilderberg a third time in 1984. David Rockefeller and Peter Wallenberg were among those present.

Mona Sahlin	MP from Stockholm 1982-1986, 2002-2011. Minister of labor 1990-1991, labor and small business 1998-2000, immigration 2000-2004, environment 2004-2006. Deputy prime minister of Sweden 1994-1995. In 1995 deputy prime minister Sahlin was the favorite to succeed prime minister Ingvar Carlsson. However, at that point it was found out Sahlin had made many private purchases on her work card, leading to the "Toblerone affair" and she being forced to withdraw from politics for 3 years. Chair of the Swedish Social Democratic Party 2007-2011, and the first chair not to serve as prime minister since 1907. Chair of the Council of Europe Against Racism. Joined the Swedish Vietcong Party in 1970 in support of this anti-American communist guerrilla in Vietnam. [47] Her brother, Jan Andersson, became a punk rocker, likely with antifa undertones, and served as a guitarist for a punk rocker named Ulf Lundell [48], who has a decently extensive Wikipedia. Her father, Hans Andersson, was a "director of various youth care schools, later a housing expert in the Social Democrats' party board, chairman of the Nacka workers' municipality and an expert for Prime Minister Ingvar Carlsson." [49] Carlsson was the deputy prime minister of Sweden from 1982 until 1986, when prime minister Olof Palme, a Bilderberg visitor in 1965, 1973 and 1984, was assassinated. Carlsson was Sweden's next prime minister in 1986-1991 and 1994-1996, but never visited Bilderberg himself. Together with many top globalists and future heads of state, a member of the first 1993 batch of "Global Leaders for Tomorrow" (the later

	"Young Global Leaders") of Davos, a group founded and headed by Henry Kissinger- and Maurice Strong-protege Klaus Schwab. [50] Invited to Bilderberg in 1996, but the "Toblerone affair" guaranteed she would never be prime minister, despite having been a favorite to follow up Carlsson. Sahlin has been included here for a number of extreme White Replacement-type statements she has made.

Hungarian administrations

Name	Government position
Viktor Orban	Anti-globalist, anti-Soros, anti-immigration prime minister of Hungary 1998-2002, 2010-, still anno 2026. In 1988-1989 Orban was sent to Oxford University on a Soros Foundation fellowship [51] to study under old Bill Clinton mentor and Hegelian Dialectic expert Zbigniew Pelczynski. [52] Subsequently, in 1993, with many top globalists and future heads of state, Orban was a member of the first batch of "Global Leaders for Tomorrow" (the later "Young Global Leaders") of Davos, a group founded and headed by Henry Kissinger- and Maurice Strong-protege Klaus Schwab.[53] Orban sat on the founding advisory board of the American Enterprise Institute-founded New Atlantic Initiative. Orban was flanked here by the elite of the elite, both neocon and traditional liberal-globalist establishment, including Zbigniew Brzezinski and Richard Perle, all of them chaired by Henry Kissinger.[54] The founding executive director was Radoslaw Sikorski, the future Polish foreign minister and Bilderberg steering committee member who studied under old Bill Clinton Oxford teacher Dr. Zbigniew Pelczynski, together with Orban. Considering a May 15, 2001 Trilateral Commission membership list reads, "Former Members In Public Service: ... Viktor Orban, Prime Minister, Hungary," it appears Orban briefly was a member of David Rockefeller's Trilateral Commission between March 1, 1998 - where his name does not appear - and having been sworn in as prime minister of Hungary on July 6, 1998.
